Ronald S. Coddington

Author of African American Faces of the Civil War

February 6
7 p.m. to 8:30 p.m.
Lipman Auditorium,
Massey Library
Technology Center
(Parham Road Campus)

A remarkable history gathers shape within Ron Coddington's African American Faces of the Civil War: An Album. An extraordinary researcher and historian of the American Civil War, Coddington tells the stories of men of color in battle through graphical representations: cartes de visite, ambrotypes, and tintypes. These compelling narratives of African Americans within the Civil War illuminate and broaden the historical contexts of the war.

Coddington's African American Faces of the Civil War: An Album is the third in his series of “Faces of the Civil War.” A well-known speaker and contributing writer for the New York Times Disunion series, Coddington lives in Arlington, Virginia.

The author will be available for book signings after the discussion.

The program is a free community event sponsored by the Reynolds Multicultural Enrichment Council. Light refreshments will be served.
